

THE POLICE PLEDGE

A PLEDGE – NOT TO CALL THE POLICE

A SOCIAL CONTRACT

I promise not to call the police on my brother, sister, mother, father, aunt, uncle, niece, or nephew! This pledge also includes my grandmother, grandfather, all my friends, co-workers, my baby mama or my baby daddy!

I promise I will sit down and talk to you calmly like a civilized human being to discuss and defuse the problems we have together in a peaceful manner. We can both choose a beer, a joint, mixed drinks, coffee, organic tea or water before we have our serious discussion.

I promise on this day forward that I will never call the police to solve any problem we have between each other ever again – starting today – not even for a wellness check! PERIOD!

Note: This pledge was created for the safety of the black community. We as a black community must start to use critical thinking and strategy for our own survival. Do not call a policeman with a gun to a simple argument due to out-of-control emotions. Based on past and present police interactions within the black community – calling the police has proven to be deadly. We must take our power back and start creating solutions for our own people. The choice is yours to make, but don't blame no one for the next police shooting at your house. It's time for a change and the time is now!
